God first. Venezuelans first.

Purpose and rationale

The reconstruction aims to tangibly and verifiably improve the lives of families. God as the foundation is the first principle: truth, integrity, love of neighbor, and a vocation of service.
These are followed by the family as a source of strength, human dignity as a principle, opportunities as a path, and Venezuela as our common home. This Christian inspiration recognizes freedom of conscience, equal dignity, and access to rights without religious or partisan conditions.

A civil society initiative

Despierta Venezuela Inc. promotes this project without being beholden to any political parties, candidates, or politicians. Cooperation among communities, professionals, businesses, academia, organizations, and the diaspora must be based on clear responsibilities, transparency, and service. The initiative does not claim public authority nor does it commit third-party resources.

A coherent architecture: 12, 30 and 100

The twelve pillars organize the implementation; the thirty areas define the national coverage; the one hundred proposals specify the interventions. These are three related levels of the same project. Mujer Digna is cross-cutting and does not add a thirteenth pillar or duplicate proposals.

The Twelve Pillars

Pillar 1: Economy, employment and income

Pillar 2: Health

Pillar 3: Education and talent

Pillar 4: Water and sanitation

Pillar 5: Electricity and Energy

Pillar 6: Security and Justice

Pillar 7: Housing and cities

Pillar 8: Infrastructure and transport

Pillar 9: Business Production and Investment

Pillar 10: Technology and Digital State

Pillar 11: Social protection and opportunities

Pillar 12: Principles of family and coexistence

Dignity that can be measured

The Dignity Basket allows users to see if their own income is sufficient to cover essential needs. The Family Filter requires an evaluation of how each policy affects households. The Dignity Dashboard should distinguish between actions taken and actual improvements in income, services, safety, learning, health, and opportunities.

The one hundred proposals and the operational development

The detailed document retains the one hundred proposals and outlines their preparation: diagnosis, initial actions, capacities, responsibilities, resources, indicators, and risks. It includes service recovery, employment and production, social protection, justice, training, modernization of the State, and engagement with the diaspora. The fact sheets for the thirty areas expand the coverage without presenting approved budgets or goals that are still pending validation.

Implementation sequence

Phase 0: preparation, evidence, competencies, and affordable portfolio. First 100 days: emergencies, capacity verification, and viable interventions and pilots. Months 3-24: stabilization and evaluation.
Years 2-5: Rebuilding and expanding what works. Years 5-10: Transformation and consolidation towards 2037.
Expansion requires proven capacity, security, and recurring funding.

Mujer Digna : autonomy and opportunities

Its seven components connect protection, employment, entrepreneurship, care, learning, health, and leadership. Mujer Digna Mujer Digna's Centers, the Mujer Digna 's Pathway, the Women Entrepreneurs Mechanism, and Care for Growth are proposed as complementary tools, subject to capacity, agreements, and evaluation. Participation will be voluntary and will respect the different paths of each woman and her family.

Responsibility and sustainability

Each intervention must explain what it will do, who is responsible, how much it costs, how it is financed, and how it is measured. Public spending, private investment, credit, cooperation, and voluntary contributions will be distinguished. Open contracting, audits, independent evaluation, and data protection will support accountability. Outstanding baselines, budgets, and quantified targets must be validated before adopting or expanding the proposal.
